

Keep Newfoundland and Labrador frack-free

Although I live in Ontario, I have visited Newfoundland three times, all coasts except the south, from Port-Aux-basques to Cape Norman, across to St. John's, Twillingate and south to Fortune. This province is a jewel which should not be put at risk from fracking,. Nor should the fine people of this province, among the friendliest people in the world, have their environment out at risk for the sake of fossil fuel extraction.

I strongly support those Newfoundlanders who are saying no to fracking and its many known and unknown risks.

Sincerely,

I. Berry
