

So you think Fracking is the answer.
Better to think again.

it uses huge amounts of fresh water which is returned as a chemical soup. Where are you going to put that?

I have flown over the fracking sites in Alberta and it looks worse than a 3rd world dump site.

Please think again, be more creative in your thinking to make Labrador and Newfoundland the pristine land that it is. There are most likely tons of light industry that would not impact on the environment. Fracking is the worst that you should consider.

Sincerely,

J. Herndler