

Keep Newfoundland and Labrador frack-free

The west Coast of Newfoundland is lovely as you drive along. You note the wild flowers and the caribou grazing beside the road. This does not need to be ruined by hydraulic fracking. Not only does it spoil the picture, but it ruins the water for the people, plants and animals on which we all depend. We can learn to get our energy from other means so that the picture can still exist.

Sincerely,

J. Lee
