

Keep Newfoundland and Labrador frack-free

If what is said is true, and that Canada has, indeed, a limited amount of fossil fuel left, then it doesn't make sense to try to access it as fast as possible simply to deplete it at an even faster rate at the expense of the health of our environment.

Fracking is being linked to more and more things that impact our environment negatively.

There is a time when we all need to put bigger profits aside and focus on what makes greater sense for the health of us all.

After all, we can't eat, drink or breathe money.

Sincerely,

L. Henderson
