

Keep Newfoundland and Labrador frack-free

Fracking is a relatively new technique for extracting our beloved fuel. Is enough known about the mid-term & long term impact. At least I have not found any research done in this area. We are getting more greedy & have stopped thinking what it can do our earth. We have been witnessing how powerful our mother nature is - she is neutral. Developed countries so proud with their wealth & power have to watch the wrath of nature helplessly as do poor & developing countries.

Newfoundland & Labrador has sparse population in most of the province - what measures have been planned to protect these people in case of any disaster? It will be a huge waste of fresh water & great chance to pollute the water as well. Who will be held accountable? These section of vulnerable population, most likely dont have a voice to make any impact either on the powerful corporation & the politicians who are indebted to corporations for their campaign fund.

Please think very carefully before you make your decision.

Sincerely,

P. Sen
