

Keep Newfoundland and Labrador frack-free

It is no secret that fracking has a huge negative impact on the environment and puts animals and humans at risk. The people of Newfoundland and Labrador have rallied against this greedy practice through the legal use of a moratorium. In a democratic country, the people who live in this region, who vote to help choose our leaders, and who pay taxes to support all levels of government, have a right to reject unsafe and short-sighted projects. I urge the review panel to respect democratic principles by listening to the majority of voters who care enough to keep this moratorium in place.

Sincerely,
