8 – (J. Wiseman comments) “The elephant in the room is climate change. It is happening faster than we accept. The acceptable target of a minimal 2 degrees celcius increase, as being safe, is a dangerous assumption. Fossil fuel consumption contributes to climate change. Scientists say we should leave it in the ground and transition to alternative energy. This article strongly presents and supports this belief. To add fracked NL oil to an already substantial source of global warming is unconscionable.”

The key climate and clean energy problem of 2015: Doing a lot isn't the same as doing enough

9 – (J. Wiseman comments ) “Climate change is real. It is the elephant in the room. It contributes to extreme weather. Extreme weather will cost billions of dollars in damages. Minister Dalley claims to be promoting economic development by exploring fracking. Burning fossil fuels contributes to extreme weather by speeding up climate change. Fracking will increase the volume of fossil fuels to burn and contribute to extreme weather and the disproportionate cost of damage caused by extreme weather. We must leave it in the ground and ban fracking in NL. This video supports my statements.”
